On Monday night there was a parrow escape from another fire. Some Chinese in Cochranestreet were cooking New Year's cakes, and apbe that Muscovite emissaries on the borders pear to have dropped a considerable amount of the fat so used upon the cook house floor. By some means, probably a spark from the fire or a pleas of lighted paper dropped upon it, this was set on fire, and soon a large section of the floor was all ablase. Fortunately some police happened to be close by, and by the prompt use of a few mils of water, which were upon the premises, they put out the flames, and no doubt averted what had there been a few minutes' delay, would have been another fire. As it was, a large hole there he any truth in this rumour, we should was burnt in the floor.

HONGKONG FLOWER AND POULTRY

The Hongkong Horticultural Exhibition Socicty held its tenth annual show yesterday in the Botanie Gardens. This year a department for poultry was added, and the experiment has turned ont a success, there being about fifty exhibits in fourteen classes. Most of the exhibitors were Europeans, but it is to be hoped that the Chinese who supply the markets will be gradually induced to take an interest in the competition, and that the show will do for poultry what the regatable show has already done for market garden produce. The Cochia China, Shanghai, and Langshan fowls comprised some really exof Asia they can reach. China recently cellent specimens of the breeds; the ducks and geese were well-conditioned birds, and of her Ambassador at St. Petersburg. The there were some pretty pigeons. Mrs. Johnson Kam sing; 3rd, Chu I Lam. took the first prize for Turkeys with a very fine . pen, and Mrs. Manger showed a pen of good looking Guinea fowls, for which she obtained a concerned, she undoubtedly gained her main first prize. A special prize was awarded to Mrs. Johnson for two peacocks.

Although the season has not been generally favourable for flowers or vegotables, there was a very fine show of each, both as regards the number of entries and the quality of the exhibits. Amongst the flowers the most striking were the very handsome camellies shown by Mr. Woodin, the plants being unusually large ones and covered with fine blooms. There was a good show of geraviums, gamein Armenia. They have long been trying and the chrysanthemums were excellent, but nearly all the roses shown seemed more or less out of condition. The dahlias were fairly good, are biding their time to make another snap also the asters. Two well grown daphnes were at Kashgaria or to extend their far-eastern shown by Mrs. Johnson and Mr. Romano, The pansies, considering how difficult they are to grow in this climate, were deserving of notice, and the Chinese primulas, although not a numerous class, were good as regards quality. nity to provoke a difference with Japan in The ferns of all classes were excellent. Mrs. Johnson had the finest exhibition of plants and of Yesso. We are not surprised, therefore, flowers, and wins the challenge cup.

There was a good display of out flowers, bou if the Chinese Government feel uncomfortquets, and table decorations. Mr. Nowroje able about their out-lying dependencies, contook the first prizes for camellia and obrysanthemum blooms, and Mr. H. J. Holmes that for sidering that so omnivorous and so powerful rose blooms. In the class for bunches of out a neighbour lies sleeplessly alert just withflowers were some very fine ones of pansies and heliotrope. There were three entries in the class for table decorations, and the M. Lemaire, the French Consul, paid a visit first and second prizes were taken by Mrs. yesterday afternoon on board the Champlain and Linetead and Mrs. Forrest respectively. The decorations were in excellent taste, being neat and chaste, rather than gandy. The prize for The P. and O. steamer Bangalore, with the table decorations of wild flowers was taken by next outward English mail; left Singapore for Mrs. Coxon, who had made a rich collection and tastefully arranged it. Some very pretty hand'

The Leypbya idea, like many other peculiarities of the Burmese, occasionally gets them into trouble with foreigners. It is the cause of the great unwillingness all Burmons have to wake a sleeping man. It is obvious from the above explanation of the character of the Levn. bya that it would be very injurious to rouse a man suddenly from his slumbers. His butterfly might be wandering far from the body and prohably would not have time to hurry back to its tenement. Then the man would certainly fall sick, or at any rate would be indisposed for a short time. Consequently, it is useless to tell a Burman servant to wake you at a certain hour. He will come in at the appointed time and look wistfully at you, and wish something would fall down and make a noise; but he himself will tr .1 as softly as a housebreaker, and will not even have the heart to instigate somebody out side to make a noise.—"SHWAY YOE," in St James's Gazette.

THE GULF STREAM AND THE PANAMA CANAL In an article under this heading, in the British Trade Journal, Dr. James Geikie, of her Ma. jesty's Geological Survey, discusses the probable effect of the opening of the Panama Canal on the Gulf Stream, and consequently on the climate of North Western Europe. "The origin of the stream," he says, "is well known. Caribbean Sea and the Gulf of Mexico are full charged with the heated waters of the great Equatorial current; and it is from this broad and deep reservoir that the famous Gulf Stream issues by the Straits of Florida to flow in a north-easterly direction towards the coasts of Europe. At the narrowest place in the Straits the stream measures 30 statute miles in breadth and area. It has been perfectly welf ascertained that the superficial stratum of the ocean throughout the whole-wast space between the great bank of Newfoundland and the coasts of France has a higher temperature than the normal of those intitudes, and is flowing persistently in a northerly and north-easterly direction towards the coasts of Greenland, Iceland, and Spitzbergen. It is doubtful whether all this body of heated water has passed through the Straits of Florida, and some physicists have maintained that only a very insignificant portion indeed has actually streamed out of the Gulf of Mexico. writers have, therefore, held that a stoppage of the Gulf Stream would have only an infinitesimal effect upon the general temperature of the North Atlantic and the climate of North-Western Enoverset by Dr. Croll, whose astimate of the enermous heating power of the Gulf Stream is now very generally accepted. According to this eminent physicist and geologist, the total quantity of heat conveyed by that current is probably equal to that of a stream 50 miles broad, and 1,000 feet deep, flowing at the rate of four miles an hour. and having a mean temperature of not less than 65 deg.—a temperature which gradually falls as the current goes north until it has cooled down to at least 40 deg. This estimate gives us 5,578,680,000,000 cable feet of water per hour. and consequently the total quantity of heat transferred from the tropics by this current amounts to 154,959,300,000,000,000,000 foot. pounds per diem. Even if we reduce this estimate one-half, the stoppage of the Gulf Stream TIRE would still deprive the Atlantic of a quantity of heat equal to one-fourth of all that is received directly from the sun by that area. It is boyond over the surface of which it spreads for so many thousands of square miles, must have a most powerful influence on the climate of those regions to which its heat is brought by prevalent winds. This is the case more especially with France, our own islands, Norway, the Feoroes, and Iceland. With us the prevalent winds are westerly and south-westerly, and these as they sweep across the Atlantic, filch warmth and moisture from the Gulf Stream, which they part with as they pass over us, in their course towards the north-east. How very materially our climate is thus affected will be readily seen if we compare the mean winter and summer temperatures of places in the same latitudes of North America and Europe. Were the Gulf Stream to be stopped the temperature of the maritime regions of North-Western Europe would probably fall as low as that of corresponding latitudes in America. In the event of that stream being diverted out of the North Atlantic, the Polar current flowing south would of course ogoapy the greater portion of the ocaspic anring to the west of us, and hence our west and Annual Income ....... £250,000 Storling. southwest winds would be cold and ungerial. On the other hand, if we could suppose the body of warm water now flowing into the North Atlantic to be bergen and Novaya Zemlya might be rendered fit abodes for civilised communities After showing TOTAL CAPITAL and that according to the records of geology such changes in the climate of North. Western Europe have actually happened within the human epoch, the writer goes on to say :- " If we glance at the map of America, we see that only a narrow neck of land separates the waters of the Pacific from the Gulf of Merico, and it is conceivable that were this isthmus to be submerged, the great body of heated water that at present finds its way north through the Straits of Florida might flow directly into the Pacific Ocean. There is no widence, however, to show that the Isthmus of Darien has been thus submerged with any recent geologioal period, and consequently the grout changes of climate referred to could not have been brought about in this way. They were most probably induced, as Dr. Croll has shown, by a remarkable-series of physical mutations which accompanied and were caused by the last great increase in the eccentricity of the earth's orbit. As the next period of high eccentricity will not occur for many future. And when we reflect upon the magni-

A LARGE WATER-BUG.

Mr. Wm. Smith wrote, on the 13th, from Mount Lavinia :- "I send you a rather curious insect I caught here to-night. I have never seen it before, neither can I get any of the natives who have ever seen it; so I conclude it must be rare. As you always take an interest in such matters, I send it for identification." The insect we learn is Belostoma grandie, the large water, bug of the paddy-fields. It sometimes attains the length of five inches, with a spread of wings of over seven inches from tip to tip. It feeds upon aquatic insects, and whon incautiously handed can inflict a painful wound with its large and seen one before. - Ceylon Observer.

INTERMARRIAGE OF RACES. A case that looks a good deal like persecution has arisen in Yorkville, S.C., where a mulatto and his wife, whose appearance would indicate that she is a white woman, have recently been convicted in a criminal court on the charge of "unlawfully living in wedlock," the accusation being that it was a case of marriage between a negro and a white person. The man is described as a light mulatto, while the woman is said to be of fair complexion, with light hair and blue eyes. Both the husband i and wife claimed that the latter had a mixture of negro blood in her veins, and that, consequently, they did not come within the provisions of the old State law against miscegenation. The woman was submitted to expert examination by a physician, who inspected the hair and skin with a magnifying glass, and explained to the court that, while he could find no trace of foreign or negro blood, he" could not say positively that the woman was of pure white blood." The man testified that he had known the wife's grandmother, and that she was, a light mulatto; and it was also shown that ber family had always associated only with coloured people. Yet, in the face of all this testimony, the couple were convicted by the jury, and will have to go to gaol under the State law, and their children, if they have any, will bear the brand of illegitimacy. If the facts as stated are true, and they are taken from the ceived from the chaplain. local newspapers published on the spot, there scours to have been a cruel injustice done in the name of law .- Public Ledger (Philadelphia), Nov. 23.
